

Rachel Roddy

Writer

Rachel was born in Southampton in 1972. Having studied at the Drama Center London she worked as an actress until, quite suddenly, moving to Rome in 2005. She lives next to a market and above a bread shop in a quarter of Rome called Testaccio, which is shaped like a wedge of cheese. Fitting for a woman who now spends her time writing about cheese and the other things she cooks in her Roman kitchen. As well as writing her blog and working on her first book, Rachel has written for the Guardian and the Spectator.

FIVE QUARTERS was published by Saltyard Books in 2015 and won the André Simon award for food writing. It was also shortlisted for the First Book Award at the Guild of Food Writers Awards 2016.

Agents

Rosemary Scoular

Associate Agent
Natalia Lucas
nlucas@unitedagents.co.uk
+44 (0) 20 3214 0916

Publications

Non-Fiction

Publication Details	Notes
FIVE	'Of course I thought Rome was glorious, but I didn't want to stay. A month, three at QUARTERS	most, then I'd take a train back to Sicily to finish the clockwise journey I'd 2015	interrupted, before moving even further southwards' Instead, captivated by the Saltyard	exhilarating life of Testaccio, the wedge-shaped quarter of Rome that centres round
Books	the old slaughterhouse and the bustling food market, Rachel decided to rent a flat and live there. Thus began an Italian adventure that's turned into a brand new life.
	Five Quarters charts a year in Rachel's small kitchen, shopping, cooking, eating and writing, capturing a uniquely domestic picture of life in this vibrant, charismatic city.