Biography

Roxy Bourdillon is an award-winning writer and the editor-in-chief of DIVA, the world's leading magazine for LGBTQIA women and non-binary people. As a journalist she has interviewed everyone from A-listers Emma Stone, Rachel Weisz and Keira Knightley to the legendary Rebel Dykes. In addition to DIVA, she's written for numerous iconic titles including Cosmopolitan, Attitude, Curve, L-Mag and Lesbians On The Loose.

A connoisseur of all things queer, she's spoken about hidden sapphic history in the Gateways Grind documentary presented by Sandi Toksvig, given a talk about The L Word at the British Film Institute and been on the jury for the prestigious IRIS Prize for LGBTQ+ film. When she's not busy writing or editing, she can be found co-hosting the LGBTQIA podcast podDIVA, alongside Rachel Shelley aka The L Word's Helena Peabody.

Roxy's groundbreaking work in queer media has earned her a place in both the Pride Power List, published in The Guardian, and The Attitude 101: LGBTQ+ Trailblazers Changing The World. She is currently working on her debut book.
