Biography

Sean McLoughlin is an acclaimed stand-up and writer based in London. Hugely in-demand in the UK and internationally, he has made appearances on Live At The Apollo, Mock The Week, The Stand-Up Sketch Show and Kevin Hart's LOL Network among others.

He has recently supported Ricky Gervais on his international arena tour having previously opened for Bill Burr at the Royal Albert Hall and appeared at a gala show at the Sydney Opera House. He has performed solo tours across Europe, Australia and North America and has released two hugely successful U.S. comedy albums. He has made multiple TV and radio appearances and his material on the world of technology has even seen Sean invited to perform at multiple high-profile tech conferences, including the keynote speech at E-Day in Amsterdam.

As a writer Sean has two sitcoms in active development. He frequently provides punch-up for sitcom scripts, short films and live shows and he has been hired as a joke-writer for major TV awards ceremonies and numerous panel shows. His podcast regularly appears in the Apple comedy charts.
