

Christopher Bell

Writer

Christopher has an original pilot script commissioned from NBC Universal for his project INLAWS AND OUTLAWS and is developing two projects with Salon Pictures - BOWIE, a biopic of David Bowie and MAD BASTARD, an action film. Christopher is working with producer Alexi Tan to develop a series for the Chinese market called CHINA PRIDE and his TV pilot REHABILITATION was optioned by Salon and Lionsgate.

Christopher has also contributed to several light entertainment formats - including one that Caitlin Moran named "the worst TV show of the past decade", and once enjoyed a short-lived TV presenting career, most unmemorably, on Sky's ABDUCT ME.

In his former life he was the editor of FHM, and also launched 'Project,' the world's first iPad magazine. He's since written for media as diverse as the BBC, CNN, the Daily Telegraph, the Sunday Times, Cosmopolitan, Grazia and, rather oddly, Brides.
