

Henry James Garrett

Writer / Illustrator

Henry James Garrett was born in Bristol to a physicist and a lawyer; wonderfully supportive parents who taught him how – and not what – to think. When he said he wanted to study art as one of his A-levels, his mother kindly pointed out that he was “crap at art”. He did it anyway. But for his degree, he stuck to what he was good at, and studied Philosophy. Henry went on to start a PhD on metaethics and empathy, but had to stop due to anxiety.

Agents

Laura Macdougall

LMacdougall@unitedagents.co.uk

Assistant

Olivia Davies

odavies@unitedagents.co.uk

02032140784