

Sophia Money-Coutts

Sophia Money-Coutts is a journalist, author and real-life person despite her name, which suggests she's a made-up character from a Jilly Cooper novel. She started out working life as a writer and editor on newspapers including the Evening Standard and Daily Mail, and then spent five years working as Features Director at Tatler, where she mostly travelled from castle to castle interviewing dukes and their Labradors.

Agents

Aoife Rice

arice@unitedagents.co.uk

+44 (0)20 3214 0800