

Runyararo Mapfumo

Runyararo Mapfumo was nominated for the 2022 BAFTA emerging talent (fiction) award for her work on Sex Education, Season 3. She was named a 2022 'Star of Tomorrow' by Screen Daily and a 2022 BAFTA Breakthrough writer/director.

Runyararo is a UK based Writer/Director. She directed the second block of Netflix's hit tv series, Sex Education, Season 3. She is currently directing the second block of Kaos, an upcoming mythological dark-comedy television series created by Charlie Covell for Netflix.

Runyararo has made an array of shorts. Her documentary WHAT'S IN A NAME? was part of The Uncertain Kingdom, a short film initiative aiming to provide a portrait of contemporary UK. Prior to this, she wrote and directed a BBC & Google Arts commissioned short, SENSATIONAL SIMMY which was released and broadcast on BBC & BBC iPlayer.

Runyararo's short film DAWN IN THE DARK was backed and funded by BFI & BBC Film. It debuted at the BFI London Film Festival, and has since picked up multiple selections and nominations for best director at the BAFTA qualifying festival, Underwire.

In addition, her short film, MASTERPIECE, also had a very successful festival run, having similarly premiered at the BFI London Film Festival in 2017. Runyararo is currently developing her debut feature film.
