

Florence Schechter

Florence Schechter is the director and founder of the Vagina Museum. Her background is in science communication and she has a degree in biochemistry from the University of Birmingham. Since it opened in 2019 in Camden Market, the Vagina Museum has been covered in international news from The New York Times to The Lancet to TIME magazine to even appearing in a joke in SNL's Weekend Update. The Museum relocated to Bethnal Green in 2022, and since its founding has received over 150,000 visitors. She has presented at a number of conferences around the world about her work in activist museums.

Agents

Laura Macdougall
LMacdougall@unitedagents.co.uk

Assistant
Eleanor Horn
ehorn@unitedagents.co.uk
02032140831