

Caroline Butler

Author

Lady C was born and educated in South London. At James Allen's Girls' School the Home Economics teacher foresaw her "career" as a "raconteur", which may, or may not, be the same as writing "will come to no good", but she is trying. After graduating from The Royal Academy of Dramatic Art she postponed indefinitely a career as a movie star in order to host a smokey bar. This was clearly the right thing to do. Never knowingly underdressed, she founded a record label, Partisan, and music publishing company, Partisan Songs although she prefers to sing other people's doleful old ditties herself.